LOCAL LEGION GROUPS GIVE BINGO PARTY AT PRATT GENERAL HOSPITAL

The regular joint meeting of the Everglades American Legion Post and Unit 20 was held at the Legion Hall Tuesday night, November 17.

Announcement was made that there will be a Bingo party sponsored by the local post November 30 at the Pratt General Hospital in Miami and all interested in attending will meet at the Legion Hall 5 p.m. that evening.

It was reported that the membership drive is proving very successful. Two new members were welcomed in the Post and Unit, namely, Mr. and Mrs. Curtis Slade.

Plans are underway for a gala New Year's Eve dance to be sponsored by the newly formed Honor Guard. Details of this event will be announced more fully at a later date.

Chicken and dumplings were served at the post-dinner followed by a recreational hour of bingo.

Florida Delegation Makes Flood Control "Number 1 State Project"

At a meeting held Sunday afternoon in the Senate Hall of St. Pete, preliminary to the meeting of the State Chamber of Commerce, the Florida Delegation, in a meeting with the Central and South Florida Flood Control Board, publicly adopted flood control as the number one project of the Delegation.

Both Senator Holland and Senator Smathers were present as were Congressman Billy McKeith, Syd Herlong, Courtney Campbell, and Dwight Rogers.

Because of the statewide meetings of the Farm Bureau group and the Cattlemen's Association, coupled with the untimely death of Dr. Millard of the University, only Dwight Rogers and Senator Holland stayed through the flood control meeting sponsored by the Flood and Water Control Committee of the Chamber headed by Luther Jones of Belle Glade. Courtney Campbell managed to make some attendance, while Senator Rogers were forced to absent themselves from the funeral because of their positions as official hosts to General Sturgis and Staff.

Congressman Rogers presided at the two-hour session of the flood control group where Sen-

Subjects Himself And Staff To Questioning By Public And Has Ready Answers

No more significant demonstration of the working of Democracy has been displayed recently to Floridians than the meeting sponsored by the Flood and Water Control Committee of the State Chamber of Commerce in St. Petersburg Monday when the Chief of Engineers of the U. S. Corps of Engineers allowed his full staff to be questioned publicly concerning the Overall Flood Control Plan, and answered questions.

The General in a talk made before the questioning, said "I have developed the greatest respect for the opinions of the people we serve."

His audience believed the General's statement, for if he didn't know the answers in detail himself, he had an answer from Col. Schulte, or others. Nor did he back off himself — he was asked some pertinent and probing questions.

West Point class of 84, commanded the 87th division in World War I; inherited a fine Army background, such as this did not hurt any, but that background did not put the grandson, Gadsden Sturgis, D. in the high brackets scholastically at the point so that he would be commissioned Lieut. in the Engineering Corps in June of 1918.

New Cooperative Is Doing Big Business

The newest cooperative in the Glades is entering on its second year of business after doing better than a million dollars in business for a business — it is the Glades Brokers' Cooperative purchasing co-op for five ships.

At its annual meeting last Friday Billy Rogers was elected as President to succeed E. A. McCabe, with W. E. Schleicher as Vice President and J. M. Elliott Secretary-Treasurer and the following directors: W. Taylor, Lewis Friend, J. P. Wadell and P. C. Dooley, Manager.

At the close of the year it was revealed that approximately 500 cars of crate materials were handled in addition to other supplies. Volume of business exceeded one million dollars and from a reliable source it was predicted that business for the coming year would be considerably greater.

Rams Final Game Vs. Blue Devils Wednesday Night

Thanksgiving dinner will be served early, as far as the Belle Glade and Pahokee football players are concerned. The two teams meet on Wednesday night in their season finale. The question of who eats and who supplies the fare will be answered before a capacity crowd.

The on-rushing Blue Devils probably will be rated a two or three touchdown favorite over the injury-ridden Rams. Pahokee currently sports a six game winning streak, their latest effort being a 36-6 massacre of Vero Beach Indians.

Paced by Hal Rosenberg and Buford Justice, selected by a big hard-hitting line, the Blue Devils do not appear to have any weakness. Local spectators at the Pahokee-Vero Beach game were very impressed by the Pahokee powerhouse.

Losses of quarterback Walt Mosley and guard Eddie Robinson, seriously crippled the Rams for their most important game of the season. The situation looks mighty rough but our boys and the coaches expect to give a good account of themselves when the two teams meet.

'Belle Glade tunes up with Pahokee Friday night, while Pahokee coach Pell takes the week off — mixing up a fresh batch of poison no doubt!

LION'S BARBECUE WED. PRIOR TO FOOTBALL GAME

At Wednesday's meeting the Belle Glade Lions Club completed plans for the big barbecue to be held at the American Legion Home next Wednesday, Nov. 25, between 5 pm and 7 pm, prior to the annual Thanksgiving football game between Belle Glade and Pahokee High School. This barbecue is expected to be made an annual affair and will afford everyone an opportunity to eat early and then attend the game.

The club was entertained by a program of music by Earl and Gene Ellis. The course of next Tuesday night.

WASHINGTON NEWS LETTER

From
Luther Jones
Editor

Most Florida newspapers carried on their front pages the other day the news that President Eisenhower had received the controversial executive order President Truman issued nearly three years ago extending censorship in government. What, from a sense of professional modesty, they did not tell you was that this restriction represented almost singlehanded victory for one of our Florida editors — V. M. Newton, Jr., of the Tampa Tribune. "Red" Newton has been fighting the idea of censorship ever since I have known him. The redhead, who was in the same class at the University of Florida with some members of the National Association for Stock Car Racing and has been given a leave of absence from NAS-NEA to help direct the February event in Palm Beach County. Queen, manager of the Palm Beach Speedway, local auto race, will devote his full time to promoting the coming speed event.

Many municipalities in the south have joined to help stage the speed carnival and every community will be represented on the carnival's advisory committee, Loyal said. The event will be staged at both the Palm Beach and West Palm Beach. Plans also include staging speed trial on a block-off section of U. S. Highway One near Broward County. The Carnival, of Speed, will include auto races, boat races, and plenty of parking space for spectators. Exhibits of speed equipment and late models of both planes and cars, speed trials, and a late model stock car championship race as a finale.

Jackson dove on the line failed to pay off the extra point. The second quarter started with the score all tied up 6-6. Quarterback Beebe Bradcock and end, Earl Armstrong, scored on a thirty-five yard pass play, which carried the ball down to Baby Tiger's 3 yard line. Ram fumbled. Jackson dove over right guard to put Belle Glade out in front again. Halfback Louis Friedman bounded through the right guard for the extra point. Clewiston took two points by winning a safety in the 3rd quarter. Bill Jackson lost the ball on a low hand-off from quarterback Bradcock, at BG 2 yard strike. Jackson dove on the ball behind the goal line a split second before a baby Tiger could cover him. Baby Tiger who will be carrying the Belle Glade Blue and Gold in the next few years.

ARENA NEWS

GLADES SADDLE CLUB Horse, Federal. It has been good to get out and swing our lariats at the arena again. Would like to see you people out there if you just sit on the fence and swing your feet. It's good practice for the cowboys and the would-be cowboys. We'd like to have some of you join our club. The cowboys outnumber the cowgirls by a longshot. We are not making too much progress on the erection of our new arena and we need more volunteers on the post-cutting expedition. Anyone with a strong back and sharp axe, please contact Bill Hair, President of the Saddle Club. We'd like to get some of you started and then things will start humming along to completion.

"Good to see Fritz Stein, Jr. out the arena, even on Sunday if he does claim to be a soffit now that he has been away to school. We miss Harold and Ann. I hope they are on their way up North slushing through snow and sleet. Mr. Tedder says he'll open pop bottles when he's not sitting on the fence. . . Geo. Geraghty claims he's a full fledged cowboy now. Rode 12 horses 45 minutes one day and couldn't sit down for a week. Says he doesn't know any more than "tender." . . . Odom caught a cat Sunday. Period. . . Looks like we won't have our dance till Spring. Saddle Club Pony Rides went over big with the small fry at the PTA Carnival. White Lightning, the Big white horse from the Livestock Mkt., was a favorite. . . Say, we need a better turnout for our regular meeting. . . and there'll be one on the first and third Thursdays of each month. . . Any ideas for entertainment for these get-togethers are welcome, especially by the members of the Program Committee. . . We have some new members at the Arena. Come out Sunday about three and see if the boys can do any better on these! Cecil Bass roped one in 27 seconds.

"We would like more of you fellows to come out and join our Club. You would be getting valuable instruction and practice from older and experienced cowboys and a lot of good, clean fun to boot. How about it? We meet out at the Arena on Wed. Schlichter's and plenty of parking space and cold drinks. See you then!"

A delicious fried chicken dinner was served to 150 members, their wives and distinguished guests, including members from the various east. Joyce group at the Lauderdale, Pompano, Miami, West Palm Beach and other places. The state as well as a number of state and district officials.

E. M. Lively, president of the Belle Glade Chamber of Commerce acted as master of ceremonies and toastmaster in the formal inimitable style. A program of organ music was given by Earl Skuse all during the arrival and seating of guests.

Mayor Harry Rabun welcomed the new organization to the city and the guests to the banquet. State Junior Chamber of Commerce President, Warren M. Goodrich of Bradenton, made the address of the evening.

President Goodrich warned of the pitfalls that await anyone against the success of any civic organization such as this. He said, "Think Big and work toward making definite contributions to the welfare of the community. The larger the plans and the more one accomplishes he remarked. (2) It is a human weakness, he pointed out, to make elaborate plans and then fail to carry them out from sheer laziness. First, make plans and then act vigorously to carry them out, he said. (3) Independent action. One should do it too far, he pointed out. Cooperation must be the watchword in local plans, with neighboring, state and national organizations to secure the most benefits for all. He ended with the recitation of the Joyce creed.

John Harper, vice-president of the sixth district as indicated by the order of the ceremony, Paul Llewellyn, William Warren, Dan Rowley, and George Choate, all as board of directors; Justin Rowley as treasurer; C. L. "Tiny" Brown as second vice-president; Frank Thibault as first vice-president; and Robert Newman as president.

The roll for charter members of whom there are 55 was then presented, the International Chamber of Commerce and the official seal of the Junior Chamber of Commerce was declared duly chartered.

Robert Newman, president, thanked the Fort Lauderdale extension committee and other district and state officials for their untiring efforts in assisting the young men with the official charter. He said that the eight weekly meetings had been held, four in addition to the four organizational meetings.

An outline of activities followed: The first activity was an entertainment presentation at the Parent Teacher Association at the lowen Carnival. The second was a membership drive which has brought in 22 additional members to the 55 charter members, making a grand total of 77.

The third activity was to secure permission from the city commission to use city benches for advertising and to obtain a fishing tournament being planned with the cooperation of the local Chamber of Commerce.

which can be shut down, or others which will produce an immediate cash return.

"Our country is full of worthwhile bargains in the resource development field. I have traveled nearly one hundred and thirty thousand miles in the last six months and have seen many good projects all over the nation. We need these projects. They are basically important to the growth of our country. In my inspections, I have seen busy and important waterways filling with silt; valuable farm lands eaten away by the erosive forces of rivers; vital navigation lanes in danger of imminent collapse; communities withering because of the exhaustion of ground or surface water supplies; and large populated areas in real and continuing danger of inundation by disastrous floods. I have seen farmlands, mines, forests, and fisheries all waiting for the development that will enable them to be more productive than they are today. It is our national strength. You know as well as I do that the natural resources must be developed."

"It will take some time to get America to continue to progress as it always has. But all the money we must buy it half-price, unlike anything that we have ever experienced before. Our people are staggering under a tax burden which takes away about one-third of their income. The government is struggling mightily to complete its tasks of unprecedented scope and urgency in our new role as leaders of the free world. To complete it all means the final calling on our national debt—the immovable object toward which the irresistible force of government spending is moving."

The first task confronting us all today is to defeat the United States and the American way of life against the threat of aggression. We are faced with the real and imminent danger of the greatest catastrophe in history—an atomic war. To us has fallen the major share of the burden of supporting and maintaining our civilization. And all this costs money.

"Today our government has many more places to put its dollars than it has dollars to spend. It is not enough now to prove that the project is a bargain or a good investment for the United States. As general rule at present, our Federal Government can afford only those public works which are essential to the national defense, those which are already under way and which can be completed as economically as possible."

"I firmly believe that together with the sharply defined ceilings that are being imposed upon our resources development, there ought to be established a floor below which we will not permit these programs to sag or to be cut. This floor must be high enough to provide an adequate resource base for national defense; high enough to insure the maintenance of projects already built; high enough to meet the most critical present project needs; high enough to make provision for the future; high enough to provide for the investigations, study, and planning necessary to insure that our construction programs will be well chosen and soundly devised. I am sure that in time some of these projects will be established with Federal, State and local governments and private enterprise all participating with defined and recognized responsibilities. For our nation is not going to be content to survive. It is going to grow and it is going to improve. And it will have a continued need for its natural resources. It will take some time to erect the floor under our natural resources development program, to determine its proper level, and to decide just what plans are going to make it. Meanwhile, Federal money will be increasingly difficult to obtain for our many needed and worthwhile projects."

In view of all this, you will understand why I believe the Central and Southern Florida Project is relatively fortunate. I do not mean to imply that it is going ahead at the pace that either you or I would like, but it is moving. Construction is fairly under way. The original could yield a long-term investment. Today—and this is something new for us in America—we are discovering that the needs are not always accompanied by the means for meeting them."

"We have on the one hand the need for providing for the defense of our country, America's defense and for her growth and development, both of which require tremendous expenditures. On the other hand is the need for the immediate reduction of expenditures and for lower taxes. This is our dilemma—yours and mine."

"This dilemma must be resolved in short order, for the work here is going to go on steadily, even if not at the optimum rate, until your project is completed. And for this you have the opportunity to discuss our mutual problems with you, for in the course of my thirty-five years in the service, I have developed the greatest respect for the opinions of the people we serve. While it is true that some individuals tend far to the left and others equally far to the right, the fact remains that the integrated thinking of the whole people is what has made our country a great nation. It is to determine your thoughts that my staff and I have come here today, and I thank you very much indeed for giving us this opportunity."

Too Late To Classify

By Russell Kay

It won't be long now before a flock of eager mimos will be galloping through the woods and Glades, loaded gun in hand, for the hunting season is almost upon us.

Unless we exercise more caution and common sense than we have been in years past, a number of these sportsmen who join in the hunt so eagerly will wind up in a hospital or worse still, in a morgue.

Realizing the danger that human carelessness presents, the Florida Fish and Game Commission has issued a special circular urging all hunters to be careful and listing safety precautions to be observed.

Unfortunately, the trigger happy hunter doesn't think such accidents apply to him. Such accidents, as they are usually termed, only happen to other fellows.

Before you take to the woods this fall, I strongly urge you to read this copy of the October issue of Reader's Digest, and read the article beginning on page 51 by William Chapman White, titled "I Thought It Was A Deer."

Last year only one state in the Union went through the hunting season without a fatal accident. Pennsylvania led the nation with 386, 54 of them fatal. It is getting so that it is almost as dangerous for a human being to be prowling around the woods during the hunting season as it is for a deer.

Careless hunters have killed their wives, their sons and daughters, their best friends. Such an experience isn't very pleasant and is a tragic and heartbreaking end to what began as a pleasure trip.

I notice that some sports writers are urging hunters to "take a boy with you when you go hunting this fall." That is all right if it is going to the hunter's schools the lad over and over in the proper handling of firearms, but not to the woods of the everpresent danger and this fall, I strongly urge you to read this copy of the October

woods are full of 'em and that's why even 'Great-Grand-Grandparents are not uncommon.

Since writing my enthusiastic column heralding the arrival of a granddaughter, I have had numerous snooty letters, wire and telephone calls from sophisticated "Greats" who informed me that I am an arse.

"Wait," they say, "until you are a great-grandfather before you start crowing. They send me pictures of dozens of assorted offspring who they claim are 'Greats' who have inherited the family name."

Maybe I am only a grandparent, but I got a granddaughter that can make all the other grand, great or what have you offspring looking like a total loss. I stand hunched on the ground, great or what have you twenty years and he can choose his own weapons.

But in spite of it all, I am downright worried. Last night I stood over her crib and looked down on her while the television was blaring away and I shuddered to think of the tremendous problems that this innocent babe will have to face in the years ahead.

Right now she is as perfect as the Creator can make 'em. She does not realize that she is realizing the problems that I face ahead. Now she is just a baby girl, she doesn't know anything about the booby trap, booby and blah that awaits her the minute that she is able to sit up and notice.

She does not realize that 'school girl complexion' she now enjoys will gallop off and leave her unless she washes her face three times a day with "Palm Oil." She does not know or care what four-out-of-five stars Hollywood stars have in their hair. She enjoys a swig of plain everyday tap water and doesn't care whether it is filtered or not. She doesn't realize that unless she uses Ipana or some other toothpaste with anti-enzymes her teeth will fall out and her gums will sag.

NUTS, she hasn't even got any teeth.

She has never had a Toni and she doesn't know or care which twin is which. She has a fat little tummy but she is not interested in diets and is not about to start taking Eys to protect her figure. Her "fragrancy" is excellent, and all these scented air fresheners can save her breath for she is not interested in Sals.

Right now, the man who promotes Kents is putting on his concentration of mind. He is wrong kind of cigarettes can do to a person. He is blowing smoke into a half dozen glasses and shortly will show us why Kents are the only safe cigarette for anybody to smoke.

My granddaughter hasn't even pulled on her first cub, and as far as his man's demonstration goes, she is playing no more attention to it than is the cat by the fireplace. By the time she starts smoking cigarettes they will have an entirely new way of balance as to the whys and wherefores and it is well that this innocent child is protected by Mother Nature from such horrors as the average cigarette commercial.

Some day she will attain the estate known as adulthood. Then, unless she is far above the ordinary and I prayfully hope she will be, she will look and listen to all this huckster's hooney and start running around in circles, brushing her teeth with this and that, worrying about lanolin, chlorophyll, and anti-cats.

She will fret about whether her friends will "tell her or not" or whether she is one of the "four out of five."

If I am still sitting around, I'll do my best to help her keep her equilibrium and impress on her the fact that ordinary soap, water and a little common sense can do more for her than all the so-called, man-made super products on the market today.

She can discount 99 percent of the advice she gets from the hucksters and still wind up as winner of the Universe Contest and that will be time enough for her to start endorsing most of the health and beauty aids.

Now is the time to get oil heaters ready for instant action. Insert two new wicks, fill the storage can and heater reservoir. Be sure the reservoir does not leak and check to see that the heater sets level.

Having a service man check permanently installed heaters that have been in use for some time is a wise move. Do it at the start of the heating season just as an automobile is checked before a long trip.

Discard old kerosene that is dirty and filled with sediment and fill the oil heater reservoir and storage can with "water-white" kerosene for excellent results from an oil heater.

 TEXT: "The use of money is all the advantage there is in having it." — Franklin

The lamenting letters had gathered in the attorney's office for the reading of the Last Will and Testament of the deceased. There was an air of expectancy over the group. Each leaned forward to hear every word that the attorney would read. He opened the document, cleared his throat and began.

"Being of sound mind and body, I spent every cent of my fortune before my death . . . The possession of money relieves a fear of the future. It is our best assurance of material welfare when our earnings days are over. However, the possession of money merely for the sake of having it, is folly. The well known phrase, 'You can't take it with you,' has meaning that we all admit. Yet many of us, especially as we grow older, try to gather more and more worldly possessions around us. Money is good to have, if we remember that the use of it is all the advantage there is in having it. That other things are more enduring, is pointed out in this comment on John Wesley in the Wall Street Journal some years ago, 'Good old John Wesley died penniless. He left only a few silver spoons, plus the Methodist Church.'

CHURCHES OF CHRIST. SCIENTIST
 The Lesson-Sermon to be read in Christian Science churches Sunday explains the spiritual nature of man's true identity. Subject is "SOUL AND BODY."

The Golden Text is from Matthew (6:22): "The light of the body is the eye, if therefore thine eye be single, thy whole body shall be full of light."

Bible selections include these words of Paul: "For in us we live, and move, and have our being; as certain also of your own poets have said. For we are also his offspring" (Acts 17:28).

Passages from "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy include: "Mortals must look beyond fading, finite forms, if they would gain the true sense of things. We must look where we would walk, and we must act as possessing all power from Him in whom we have our being."

THANKSGIVING
 A Thanksgiving Day service will be held in all Christian Science churches on that holiday. The Lesson-Sermon to be read is "THANKSGIVING."

The Golden Text is from Revelation (1:12): "Blessed are they that do his commandments, that they may have the right to the tree of life, and may enter in by the gates into the city."

Selections from the Bible include the following from Psalms (103:2): "Bless the Lord, O my soul, and forget not all his benefits."

Passages from "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy include: "Are we really grateful for the good already received, and do we avail ourselves of 'e' blessings we have, but still be tired to receive more. Gratitude is much more than verbal expression of thanks. Action expresses more gratitude than speech."

This service will include appropriate testimonies of gratitude by Christian Scientists.

REV. PETRIE TO GIVE MESSAGE AT JOINT THANKSGIVING SERVICE
 The Rev. John C. Petrie, vicar of the Church of St. John the Apostle, will deliver the message at the Community Thanksgiving Service which will be held at the Everglades Presbyterian Church, Nov. 28 at 9 a. m. They will be host to other Belle Glade Churches and the choir will furnish special music.

A cordial invitation is extended to all Nursery attendants will be present to care for small children. Come and give thanks to God for the many blessings that is given us.

WNU STUDY COURSE ON LET'S LISTEN
 The Women's Missionary Society of the First Baptist Church enjoyed a supper in the recreational room preceding the regular meeting. The theme of the study book, "South America" was carried out in the various foods originating or used in that country.

Following the supper the meeting was opened with a prayer by Mrs. Schleicher. Reports were given by church chairmen. It was announced that the week of prayer would be observed Nov. 30 through Dec. 5.

Mrs. William Thibodeau gave the study course on "Let's Listen."

Activities of Glades Scouts

Why join an area council?

 (i) Setting up a slate for the officers, and board members of the first council. Who plans our local programs? You do, but you can get help and advice and training for your job by being a member of the council.
 How many meetings of all kinds would be necessary per year?
 1) Your council decides this when it adopts the constitution.
 2) Most new councils have found that they need to meet twice per year and the board five times a year at least.

 3) Committees and local groups meet as often as necessary to get their jobs done, and they usually decide this themselves.

Staff and Office

What does a professional worker do?
 She guides and coordinates the work of the council. For example, she helps train volunteers, works with the president and the council, helps set up a troop, consultant plan, and strengthens the camping program. (Reference: Page 8, "Job Descriptions for Girl Scout Professional Workers.")

How many will be on the Staff?

This depends on the size of the council. Each council should have at least one professional worker and one office worker as well as a comfortable office and sufficiently equipped for them to carry out their jobs efficiently. (Reference: "The Primer for Girl Scout Councils," "Job Descriptions for Girl Scout Professional Workers.")

How much time will she spend in our town?
 Your staff and office committee will plan for this according to the needs you have expressed for your town and the service needed throughout the council. It will vary from month to month according to the plan of service.

Where would the office be?
 It would be decided by your council and should be centrally located.

Who selects staff members, and where do we find a professional worker?
 1) The staff and office committee (a) selects, with board approval, your professional staff from qualified candidates

Spray Away Unwanted Brush Growths

Next spring this fence-row will not shade the field next to it nor rob the crops of needed moisture. This farmer is killing brush that has grown up along the fence, depriving the bases of the stems from the ground line to knee high with Esteron 25 in oil.

Winter spare time can now be turned to farm profits. The dormant season provides time for an easy start in pasture improvement, clearing out fence rows, and controlling brush and weed trees around the farm. The sprayer method, Esteron 25, mixed with kerosene, is applied to the base and stems of brush or trees from knee high to ground line, and it kills the solution starts to run off. Most trees and brush treated in this way never shoot leaves in the spring. Some will start growth and then wilt and die by mid-summer. Winter is a good season for this job because there is more time on most farms, and sensitive grass and crops are not growing at that time. The chemical is widely recognized for use in dormant seasons on brush, vines and persistent weeds.

referred to by the national Personnel Department, and (b) in consultation with the executive director, recruits and employs the secretarial staff from the local community.

2) The council may recruit qualified, potential professional workers locally and refer them to the Personnel Department for approval. (Continued next week)

The fourth grade Brownies are making gifts for Christmas. They met at the home of their leader, Mrs. William Humes on N. W. Avenue 2 from 3 to 4 on Wednesday. Judy Green visited with the group. Others present were Judith Amelie, Cathie White, Unia Felsing, Eleanor Humes, Peggy and Penny Carlton and Gloria Smith.

First grade intermediate and second grade intermediate Brownies met jointly Monday afternoon with their leaders, Mrs. Fred White and Mrs. W. D. Matthews at the scout hut. The group formed patrols and elected officers. During the work session they worked on Good Housekeeping badges. There were sixteen members present.

AS ALLOWED BY LAW
 "That the subjects... many have arms for their defense suitable to their conditions, and as allowed by law."

So reads a part of the original Bill of Rights presented in 1689 to the Prince and Princess of Orange by the lords and common of England "for the vindicating and asserting their ancient rights and liberties." Just about a hundred years later we find this same thought included in the Constitutions of the Federal Firearms Act of 1938, which controls and regulates the interstate transportation of their weapons and related components and ammunition. Both are useful laws of the land. Neither one, if properly interpreted and enforced, should penalize the hunter, the target shooter or the arms collector. Each has our full support and our hearty endorsement.

There are, however, other types of laws which we do oppose. Generally speaking, they would require the registration of every type of weapon in the municipality, the state or the country. They would require every citizen, regardless of his character and reputation, to obtain a permit to possess, carry or to use a weapon, and leave the granting or the refusal of such a permit to the arbitrary decision of a single official.

History clearly indicates that the registration of firearms constitutes one of the first steps toward the establishment of a police state or of a dictatorship. Once such weapons have been registered it is a comparatively easy thing to disarm the populace. Our forebears were fully cognizant of this possibility when they included the right to bear arms in their declarations of freedom and their Constitutions as democracies.

It is unfortunate but nonetheless true that not every elective or appointed official is above reproach. The power to approve or to deny the right to an individual in his community to have a weapon is a power which can be abused. The citizenry of good repute while arming the one of ill repute. All too often such restrictive laws lead to arbitrary decisions by the police who enforce them which far transcend the intent of the legislators who enact them.

Restrictive laws or regulations are usually proposed by good intentioned citizens and police who seek to reduce the number of firearms accidents or to disarm the potential criminal.

The NRA is not unmindful of these problems. It believes, however, that the solution to gun accidents is through education in proper gun handling rather than through restrictive legislation. It believes, also, that the answer to the armed threat through punitive legislation aimed at the criminal and not through laws which disarm the honest citizen.

The best way to deter armed crime is to make it unprofitable for any individual to use a weapon in the commission of a crime. Our laws should be revised to that end and our courts required to adjudicate adequate penalties.

The NRA has as much interest in protecting our citizenry against armed assault as do the police themselves. The NRA has as great an interest in preventing gun accidents as any parent. On the other hand, the NRA has a primary interest in seeing to it that our loyal and law-abiding citizens have the right to have and bear arms for their personal, protection, for recreation and for the national defense.

Working together in the proper channels, the NRA, the police, and all good people can defeat the armed threat and reduce the number of gun accidents, without arbitrary and restrictive legislation, and at the same time, maintain the freedom and the security of these United States of America in a troubled world. Only by so doing can we be assured that our subjects may have arms for their defense, suitable to their conditions, and as allowed by law."

rounds sees the joys and sorrows of those he serves. He sees the normal healthy child run and play. Then he is faced with the tragic sight of another child, wheelchair-bound and dying by inches of muscular dystrophy.

"... Some of our postal employees have children, relatives, and friends who are victims of this dread disease. Consequently they know first hand the tragedy of this dread and mysterious affliction which is 100 percent fatal."

"To aid those stricken with muscular dystrophy, the letter carriers of the nation, who so faithfully serve the public by delivering the mail are gladly and voluntarily putting in extra time after hours to collect the funds we feel certain generous Americans will want to give to this worthy cause."

It is up to the American public to support the efforts of these fine men who are giving so unselfishly of their time, to help the nation's ailing children.

LETTER CARRIERS MARCH FOR MUSCULAR DYSTROPHY

The United States letter carriers, those dependable, persevering, hard-working public servants, deserve a vote of gratitude from the American people for their proposed march of mercy on behalf of the hundreds of thousands of unfortunate victims of muscular dystrophy. Uncle Sam's men in blue-grey uniforms are preparing to go on a mission which takes them far beyond the call of duty.

After Thanksgiving, each of these public servants, 100,000 members of the National Association of Letter Carriers, support of their national president, William C. DeBor, will take on the added burden of re-walking his route—to pick up contributions to aid victims of muscular dystrophy, a fatal disease. These funds are vital—helping to find a treatment and cure to save the lives of those afflicted by this dread crippling and fatal malady. Victims of this mysterious illness are principally children.

Heading the "Letter Carriers March" is U. S. Postmaster General Arthur E. Summerfield, who says of his men:
 "A letter carrier on his daily
